

Student Led Conference Class- I

“Sometimes the little voices have biggest things to say”

Student led conferences are an incredible way for students to take ownership of their learning and behaviour. The students of class I took an initiative to showcase their work through a student led conference held on 20th December, 2019, where the goal was to have the child lead most of the conference and take more responsibility for academic achievement and self discipline.

The students went through the notebooks and projects thoughtfully done and presented a melodious song “We are the planets”. It was followed by vocabulary notebook used as a vocabulary building tool, story sheet for explaining their story building skills, flip books for depicting their learning for plants and a life cycle sheet. The story sum sheets helped them to analyse the mathematical concepts in an easy manner. They also used their artistic skills to make models of Earth and Punjabi letters. This was a great opportunity for them to showcase their work which they considered their personal best. This showcase added to the confidence level of the students. Such type of student led conferences empowers the students as they are the ones leading the conversation. The real power in this innovation is that the student led conferences require students to take most of the responsibility for reporting what they have learnt. Parents were spell bound to see their utmost confidence and ease with which they presented. Ms. Bhupinder Gogia Principal, Sat Paul Mittal School affirmed that through such processes student develop a sense of pride in their accomplishments and begin to measure their own personal goals and standards, rather than imposed by a teacher or parent- an important step in cultivating the mind set of life long learner.
