

Dawn Club @ Sat Paul Mittal School

Ethics, morals, personal beliefs, the trolley problem and Thanos' decision to snap away half the universe. This philosophical discussion in the Dawn Club posed many questions that could make one want to tear one's hair out. But that was exactly the purpose, the motive of the Dawn Club; to pose questions and raise curiosity.

The meeting kicked off with the vital question – Is it possible to make morally correct decisions while being realistic?

The members delved into the age-old ethical dilemma called the trolley problem and deliberated over its various aspects. After an animated discussion members came to the conclusion that in today's world it's impossible to make a choice that is morally correct or genuine in its entirety. There is always something ethically questionable once each aspect of the situation is analysed. Various scenarios were discussed, and unique perspectives of members contributed towards making the discussion fascinating. Shea Mago, Daksheesh Singhania and Punya Khurrana shined in the highly interactive session.
