

Sat Paul Mittal School in collaboration with Ashoka University organised a webinar on Creative Writing

As a part of College and Career Readiness Program (CCRP), Sat Paul Mittal School in collaboration with Ashoka University organised a webinar on Creative Writing on 30th July, 2021. The workshop was conducted by Arunava Sinha, Associate Professor of Creative Writing at Ashoka University. The workshop began with an introduction about the professor, followed by a current student studying at the Ashoka University informing everyone in the meeting about their experience and the courses the university has to offer on creative writing.

The workshop was mainly revolved around multiple exercises which were aimed at learning basic tools of fiction-writing and flash fiction. The first exercise which the participants had, to begin with, was thinking of one characteristic of their best friend which mainly describes their personality. The participants actively contributed and came up with wonderful ideas.

The second exercise involved creating a fictional character and form a connection between the two of them. The processing of the stories was gradually being molded by all the participants with the help of the professor. After each interesting exercise, students worked singly and got more hooked to it.

The third exercise required them to form the setting and come up with a meeting spot for both their characters. Everyone was enthusiastically partaking in all the virtual activities; the professor had done the best job in making all the participants engrossed in their stories. All their creative ideas were welcomed and entertained.

The fourth exercise involved them adding a surprise element, to produce conflict and make their storied engaging. By the end of the session, every participant had a detailed outline of their stories culminated. The seminar was a grand success and gave all the participants resourceful learning.
