

A Field Trip to Duke Fashions India Limited and Kitty Breads for Class VIII

After being hunkered down for two years due to Covid pandemic, it was a matter of great delight as our school organized a field trip for our class. Sat Paul Mittal School has always gone beyond the classroom learning to cater to the holistic development of students by always providing them practical exposure. A factory tour was organized to the Duke Fashions India Limited and Kitty Breads for the students of Class 8.

For the visit, a group of 52 students went to Duke Fashions India Limited and 41 students went to Kitty Breads. They were accompanied by their class teachers. On reaching, we were accorded a warm welcome by the senior executives and staff. At the onset, a group of students gave an introductory presentation, highlighting the aims and goals of Sat Paul Mittal School. After being briefed up with the insights of the production chain, the factory authorities took us around the entire establishment and explained us the entire process of producing a garment and making a loaf of bread. To end on a happy note, we were all offered some refreshments by the factory staff. We thanked their entire team and effort.

This visit gave us a first-hand exposure to the garment production industry and bread making. It was a wonderful learning experience. The interaction with the factory personnel was really helpful in understanding the latest trends in the garment industry and baking the bread. It would be immensely beneficial for those interested to pursue this as a career. This exciting trip was not just a day off from the usual classroom studies, but in fact a great live interactive event for the students. We are really grateful to the school authorities for this wonderful learning experience.
